LETTER FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

I am honored to write this letter of introduction for this report. This last year has proven challenging as we navigated a staffing crisis, high inflation, and the lasting effects of a global pandemic. However, I must tell you that despite all those things...

Good Things Grow Here. People. Produce. Purpose.

Arnold Center participants have continued to thrive through our purpose-driven vocational training and community activities. This is primarily due to our staff and the continued support of our community employers and partners. I am inspired by the individuals I see walking through our doors daily. Our staff members show up every day to provide meaningful interactions, training, and genuine care for those easily overlooked.

This organization is special, and not just because of what we do.

- It is special because we have a Board of Directors that believe in our mission and their unwavering support of our participants and staff.
- It is special because of the dedicated staff members that live our mission and provide countless hours of support for those we serve.
- It is special because we have a leadership team that gives their all to support their departments in meeting our mission.

It is special because of all the individuals we serve who give us purpose.

Over the last couple of years, the Arnold Center has remained financially stable, which is demonstrated through our strong balance sheet, development of additional programming and continued success of our Social Enterprises; Arnold Farms, Good Kitchen, and WeCycle. Our partnerships with community employers have expanded our employment training and work opportunities into new sectors and increased the earning potential for individuals in our programs. These increased employment have also resulted in increased wages and career paths for our staff members. We realize that investing in our staff is an investment in the future of our program.

We have reviewed our policies and practices with our increased knowledge of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion, which has resulted in updates to ensure we are an inclusive environment and organization for all community members. I cannot be prouder of the steps we have taken to advance our environment that promotes people and purpose. I invite you, if you have not already, to learn more about the Arnold Center and to become part of what makes this organization exceptional.

OUR BOARD

We would like to extend our sincerest thank you to our Board of Director for another year of service. Our Board of Directors, has been united, in their commitment to valuing people's strength, abilities and skill regardless of the challenges they may face. As a non-profit, Arnold Center is governed by a Board of Directors comprised entirely of volunteers who are share our mission and have committed to sharing their professional expertise and time. This time and energy devoted to Arnold Center's planning and well-being is a gift that we are grateful to receive.

We would like to give a special thank you to Kyle Fahrner for his service as our Board Chair (2020-2022). With Kyle's leadership we have been able to navigate through great challenges. A famous activist once said, wisdom is knowing what to do next; virtue is doing. Kyle has proven to be both wise and virtuous.

TOURS AND OPEN HOUSES

Our Arnold Center Ambassador Team provides guided tours and presentations to large and small groups in our area. Our guests get a tour of our facility, the opportunity to see what we do from Arnold Farms to the Good Kitchen along with everything in between. We offer refreshments made by our cooking class participants and participant artwork created in the Kaleidoscope art program is displayed and sold during events.

We were honored to be one of four businesses to have the opportunity to host participants in Northwood University's Peace Through Business Program. Women from Afghanistan and Rwanda toured our facility spending time learning about our disability services along with our success with Social Enterprises.

Arnold Farms is a fully organic, non-GMO, indoor hydroponics farm. Hydroponic farming is a soil-less, water-based farming process. Temperature, nutrients, and PH levels are all computer monitored to ensure the ideal growing conditions for our crops 365 days a year, ensuring our ability to deliver the finest quality produce in a sustainable, climate friendly environment.

Arnold Farms' 3,000 square foot indoor facility has the capacity to grow 12,000 plants. Our mission is to provide a training environment where our participants can earn a paycheck while learning diverse and valuable skills for careers in the agricultural industry or any field they choose.

Many of the greens grown at Arnold Farms can be found not only in our own Good Kitchen's menu, but also in local restaurants, local grocers, and at the Midland Farmer's market.

Dow volunteers learn the growing process from preparing the trays to weighing the produce for packaging.

SAFETY

Safety Doesn't Happen By Accident.

We are committed to safety and thanks to concerted and consistent safety education, training and best practices, the number of injuries and/or illnesses remains low.

SUCCESS

JJ worked on skill building for several months before beginning placement services. He worked on skills like number recognition, communication skills, and problem solving in the workplace. He also considered what type of work he would like to do. He decided on maintenance / custodial, because he takes pride in maintaining a high level of cleanliness and organization in his home and surroundings, and enjoys helping fix things. He then created his resume and practiced interviewing skills.

JJ applied to several jobs and went on two interviews before applying to Taco Bell. He attended the interview ready to work, and it showed. He was hired the same day, and has worked at the North Saginaw Rd. Taco Bell five days a week, for nearly a year now. He started out with a job coach, every day, for every hour of his shift, and now works independently, with weekly check ins for support, to trouble shoot when necessary, and assist in communication with home staff, etc.

It is the cleanest Taco Bell in Michigan. JJ's manager has said of him, that Taco Bell's motto is "The Best on the Block", and that JJ's performance and work ethic demonstrate that every day. JJ has developed several great natural supports in the workplace, and gets along great with his managers and coworkers. In fact, He is planning to ask his boss for additional hours and increased job responsibilities.

COMMUNITY EMPLOYMENT

Our Community Employment Programming offers vocational training and paid training opportunities to work in the community. Services include application and interview assistance, resume building, transportation, and assistance with linking to other employment support services.
